Whirlpool announces major job cuts

Salaried workforce takes hit, though no numbers released

By TONY WITTKOWSKI
HP Staff Writer

BENTON HARBOR — Whirlpool Corp. is laying off a portion of its workforce in response to unexpected costs stemming from the COVID-19 pandemic.

Whirlpool announced that layoffs taking place Monday were only for U.S.-salaried workers, but that the overall cost reductions are global, while being implemented at a regional level.

In previous cost-cutting moves, the Benton Harbor appliance maker offered a voluntary retirement program while also reducing budgets and implementing mandated furloughs, restricting travel, and taking other internal steps due to the pandemic and corresponding economic distress.

Whirlpool released a statement Monday in announcing the layoffs.

"In order to weather a global economic recession, which includes the impact of COVID-19, Whirlpool Corp. has publicly committed to reducing global costs," the statement read, citing its previous steps. "It is now also necessary to take additional action and reduce the number of people we employ in the U.S. All impacted employees are being offered a strong severance package to support them in their transition. Though these decisions are difficult, we believe they are necessary to adapt to the reality of an economic contraction and prepare us for new ways of working in the future."

No details were released regarding how many positions are being cut from the U.S. workforce, or here locally.

Whirlpool employees received an email last week from the company's U.S.-based executive team discussing the pending layoffs.

The Herald-Palladium viewed a copy of the email, which said employees would have one-on-one conversations scheduled all throughout this week. As for the employees losing their jobs, the emailed stated they would have the opportunity to meet with a business leader, with human resources and with an outplacement services representative.

"We have to dramatically simplify our structure to eliminate work redundancies and overlaps, address spans of control, re-level roles, and organize related work and

Whirlpool Corp. announced Monday that it is laying off a portion of its U.S. workforce in response to unexpected costs that the company attributes to the COVID-19 pandemic. The layoffs are in part hitting Whirlpool's salaried workforce. Here in Southwest Michigan about 4,000 residents are employed by the appliance maker.

Keeping her eye on the big picture

SJ Community Development Director Kristen Gundersen helps shape city's overall vision

ST. JOSEPH — Kristen Gundersen says "No one went to school to be an urban planner in the 1980s."

But after growing up in Niles and graduating from Niles High School in 1986, she did.

She graduated from Michigan State University in 1990 with a degree in urban and regional planning.

After 25 years working various planning jobs and doing community development work in the Chicago area, she returned to Berrien County, settling back in Niles and becoming the community development director for the city of St. Joseph, a role she has held for four and a half years.

Gundersen sat down with Herald-Palladium Staff Writer Julie Swidwa to talk about her work here.

What brought you back to Southwest Michigan?

Just a new change of pace. Something different. I was looking for a new job and this one came about.

In a nutshell, what do you do?

I have a few things I do related to community development. I'm the zoning administrator, so I'm in charge of enforcing the zoning ordinance. That's things like building setbacks, building heights, and what you can do on your piece of property. I review permits or interact with people who review those permits. I also now write all the reports for the planning commission. For example, if someone comes in to get a sign permit, there's certain signs that need to be reviewed by the planning commission. If you need a special use permit or a planned unit development, I process those and write reports for the planning commission and the city commission.

So like the Krasl, their recent improvements they've done on their property, had to go to the planning commission and city commission. The hospital's big addition also went to them and I processed all the paperwork for it and wrote the staff reports.

Then I also work with the zoning board of appeals. I do all their administrative work. Interact with the applicants, getting all their paperwork in that needs to be completed, answering their questions and doing public hearing notices, and then writing the staff memos and all the follow-up paperwork.

I also now work with the downtown development authority, which is in

Putting words into action

SJ City Commission beings social justice conversations

By JULIE SWIDWA
HP Staff Writer

ST. JOSEPH — In a cohesive statement earlier this month, the St. Joseph City Commission vowed to do its part, as a body and as individuals, to work toward social justice and racial equity.

On Monday, the commission took a big first step in putting those words into action.

In a meeting held by Zoom and moderated by Commissioner Lynn Todman, several residents jumped on board.

The commission decided to continue the social justice conversations, at least for now, on all Monday nights that the city commission does not hold its twice-monthly regular meetings. The meetings, along with a link to join, will be posted on the city's website, sjcity.com. Anyone can register to join.

Mayor Mike Garey opened Monday's meeting by reading the city commission's statement on systemic racisim and social justice that was first issued June 8.

The statement, in summary, says St. Joseph stands with people in their sorrow over the death of a Black man at the hands of a white police officer and joins others across the nation who are calling for justice following the death of George Floyd.

"Though miles separate Minneapolis from our city of St. Joseph, the oath of office to serve and protect all of our residents equally under our laws and policies ties us together. Our residents entrust in us official authority to act in ways that are consistent with the high moral values and unwavering commitment to the belief that we, as elected officials, be fair and unbiased in our decision-making

Gov. Whitmer calls for chokehold ban by police

Also wants to make racially motivated 911 calls hate crimes

By PAUL EGAN
Detroit Free Press

LANSING — Gov. Gretchen Whitmer said Monday she wants to ban police use of chokeholds and make racially motivated 911 calls hate crimes.

The measures were among a new series of police reforms called for by Whitmer, who on June 3 announced other measures she wants enacted in Michigan, including requiring police officers to intervene if they see colleagues using excessive force.

Whitmer called for the ban on chokeholds as protests continue in Michigan and across the country over the Memorial Day death of George Floyd, after an arrest by Minneapolis police in which a former officer used his knee to press down on Floyd's neck for nearly nine minutes, despite the fact Floyd said he could not breathe.

Whitmer, GOP reach budget deal

LANSING (AP) — An agreement to address a $3.2 billion shortfall in Michigan's 2020 budget was announced Monday by Gov. Gretchen Whitmer and legislative leaders to respond to deep budget shortfalls brought on by the pandemic crisis.

The agreement includes reductions in funding and also provides federal COVID-19 relief funding for schools, universities, community colleges and local governments, businesses and workers, Whitmer, Senate Majority Leader Mike Shirkey and House Speaker Lee Chatfield said in a joint statement.

"In this time of crisis, it is our responsibility to come together and build a budget that reflects a bipartisan commitment to the things we value most as Michiganders," their statement said. "This agreement provides crucial funding for Michigan families, schools, and communities grappling with costs incurred as a result of the virus."

They said would work together to address shortfalls in next year's budget and asked for congressional help in the next budget. The current budget year ends Sept. 30.

The agreement still requires approval by the full Legislature.

Abortion foes disappointed after Supreme Court ruling

By ELANA SCHOR
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Abortion opponents vented their disappointment and fury on Monday after the Supreme Court issued a 5-4 decision to strike down a Louisiana law that would have curbed abortion access.

The ruling delivered a defeat to anti-abortion activists, but President Donald Trump's reelection campaign quickly invoked it as part of a new appeal to voters – signaling its power to motivate religious conservatives who are a key part of his base ahead of November's election.

Vice President Mike Pence summed up that argument, tweeting that the Supreme Court's decision made one thing clear: "We need more Conservative justices on the U.S. Supreme Court." Underlining his case, Pence added "#FourMoreYears."

Top pro-Trump religious conservatives noted pointedly that both justices he named to the high court dissented from Monday's decision, aligning with Pence in making the case that Trump should get another term in office to potentially tap more conservative nominees.

The Rev. Frank Pavone, national director of Priests for Life and a member of Trump's Catholic voter outreach effort, said the president's "two appointees voted the right way" in supporting Louisiana's ability to require doctors who perform abortions to have admitting privileges at nearby hospitals.

"Once again this ruling underscores the importance of elections," Pavone said in a statement. "We need a solid pro-life majority on the Supreme Court to uphold the rights of women and the unborn."

Johnnie Moore, an evangelical adviser to the Trump administration, said the decision could help motivate anti-abortion activists to vote to reelect the president.

"Conservatives know they are on the one-yard-line," Moore tweeted. "Enthusiasm is already unprecedented, evangelical turnout will be too."

Some right-leaning abortion foes – including at least four congressional Republicans – responded to the decision by criticizing Chief Justice John Roberts, appointed by President George W. Bush. Roberts concurred with the court's four more liberal justices while not signing onto their opinion in the case.

"Chief Justice Roberts is at it again with his political gamesmanship," Sen. Ted Cruz, R-Texas, tweeted. "This time he has sided with abortion extremists who care more about providing abortion-on-demand than protecting women's health."

"Americans hoping for justice for women and unborn babies were let down again today by John Roberts," Sen. Tom Cotton, R-Ark., said in a statement.

Social media platforms reckon with hate speech

By TALI ARBEL and BARBARA ORTUTAY
AP Technology Writers

For years, social media platforms have fueled political polarization and hosted an explosion of hate speech. Now, with four months until the U.S. presidential election and the country's divisions reaching a boiling point, these companies are upping their game against bigotry and threats of violence.

What's not yet clear is whether this action is too little, too late – nor whether the pressure on these companies, including a growing advertiser boycott, will be enough to produce lasting change.

Reddit, an online comment forum that is one of the world's most popular websites, on Monday banned a forum that supported President-Donald Trump as part of a crackdown on hate speech.

YouTube, meanwhile, banned several prominent white nationalist figures from its platform, including Stefan Molyneux, David Duke and Richard Spencer.

Social media companies, led by Facebook, now face a reckoning over what critics call indefensible excuses for amplifying divisions, hate and misinformation on their platforms. Civil rights groups have called on large advertisers to stop Facebook ad campaigns during July, saying the social network isn't doing enough to curtail racist and violent content on its platform.

Companies such as the consumer goods giant Unilever – one of the world's largest advertisers – as well as Verizon, Ford and many smaller brands have joined the boycott, some for the month of July and others for the rest of the year. While some are pausing ads only on Facebook, others have also stepped back from advertising on Twitter and other platforms.

Women Rush to Get New 7-Minute Needle Free Botox Alternative

Women across the country are skipping botox after trying a powerful "next generation" treatment. This new anti-aging treatment works better than botox, but at a fraction of the cost and none of the side effects. Risk-free in-home trials available for a limited number of new customers.

By E.M. Abrams
Health New Syndicate

Expensive and painful botox injections show how much pressure women are under to look younger. The needle-injection treatment works, although temporarily. But it also has significant downsides.

Expense is certainly one of them. Botox treatments can be as much as $1,200. And many women come back for 2 to 3 treatments per year!

The side effects can be very embarrassing. Frozen faces, too-tight skin and overly puffy lips are the tell-tale signs of too many botox treatments.

But according to the thousands of women who have tried a new "next generation" anti-aging treatment, botox now has a powerful new alternative.

The secret lies in a powerful new extract from the Sang Hwang plant. Incredibly, modern studies show it can repair damaged collagen fibers and stimulate a mega-boost of your own collagen. The result is a dramatic reduction of fines lines, wrinkles and age spots.

This rejuvenating extract is finally available in the U.S., exclusively in an all-new skincare serum called "Deep Radiance & Essence" by Saranghae. Saranghe is the first company in North America to offer this powerful healing extract.

Their serum can accomplish the same goal as botox - look years younger - but at a fraction of the cost.

The results are so dramatic, some users get asked if they've been to a plastic surgeon!

"The fine lines around my forehead and around my eyes are almost gone. My sister asked me for my doctor because she thought I had work done." - Amelia R, Los Angeles, CA.

Why So Much Excitement?

Botox actually injects a toxin into the skin. This is the same toxin that causes botulism, which can be lethal in some cases! When injected into tissue, it paralyzes the muscle which leads to a smoother but puffy look.

On the other hand, the extract featured in Saranghae's Deep Radiance & Essence Serum works very differently. Rather than use toxins, it actually repairs the part of the skin that wrinkles and sags as we age. This deep repair is part of what leads to such noticeable results.

In fact, the change women see is so significant it's completely disrupting the beauty industry.

Peter Lee is the CEO of Saranghae, and he's not afraid to ruffle some feathers.

He says, "We don't cover up problem areas with chemicals and fillers that just cause more damage over time. Instead, we give women the tools to look years younger using healing ingredients like the Sang Hwang extract."

Aimee's Results Are Better Than Botox: After just 30 days, Aimee (pictured above) looks way better than she would have with botox. Examples like this are why fillers and lifts are becoming a thing of the past for women using this popular new treatment.

"Women who try Deep Radiance & Essence Serum tell us it's the first time they have seen results this dramatic from a skincare treatment," says Lee. "It's great to see how a new look can boost their confidence."

After only 7 weeks, Jennifer is a believer. She says, "I started using this system about a month and a half ago and I've lost count of how many compliments I've received. I keep hearing, 'What are you doing? Your skin is glowing!'"

How it works

Needle injections and fillers aim to fill in wrinkles with unnatural substances.

The natural extract used in Deep Radiance & Essence Serum works to help fix the root of the problem - lower collagen and elastin levels.

This is critical to looking younger because starting at age 30, we lose about 1.5% of our collagen and elastin every year. By the time we reach 50, we're losing 2%. By then, that plump dewy skin we once knew is showing dramatic grooves, lines, and sagging.

Repairing damaged fibers and stimulating your own collagen gives you a new look by naturally healing your skin from the inside-out.

Women love the idea of looking younger by improving their skin's health. The fact that it's less expensive and fully guaranteed makes it a no-brainer.

What Will I Look Like?

The market is flooded with expensive skincare lines that are unhealthy and produce little to no visual results. Saranghae's Deep Radiance & Essence couldn't be more different.

Real users are shocked by how well it works.

Becky from Florida says, "I will turn 60 years old soon, and I live in the sun. Before I tried Saranghae's serum my skin was dry and tight with visible brown spots, crows feet and saggy."

"In only a few months, my skin is soft and dewy and the brown spots have really diminished. My jawline has lifted and the lines around the eyes have softened. I am so happy!"

Michelle from Colorado is also thrilled. She says, "My skin has completely changed... I can't believe this is my skin! I don't get breakouts anymore and I get compliments all the time. Best anti-aging serum ever!"

She adds, "My friends are amazed when I tell them I don't wear any foundation or concealer. My glowy and gorgeous complexion, it's completely natural."

Risk-Free, In-Home Trial

The amazing response from women across the country has generated a wave of confidence at the company. So much so that CEO Peter Lee is offering a guarantee not usually seen from beauty companies.

He says, "The biggest challenge we have is convincing women to just give it a try. We know that once they use the product, the results absolutely speak for themselves."

"So we want to remove all the risk for women who may be asking themselves if it can work for them."

Saranghae will ship your product and give you a full 45 days to try it out. You must be 100% happy with the results you see in the mirror, or else you'll be refunded in full ... even if your products are completely used!

That kind of guarantee is almost unheard of at department store beauty counters and online boutiques.

Special Opportunity For Our Readers

This is the official release of Saranghae's Deep Radiance & Essence anti-aging serum in Michigan. As such, the company is offering a special discounted supply, reserved for Saint Joseph Herald-Palladium readers. But only for those who call within the next 48 hours.

A Regional Order Hotline has been set up for local readers to call. This gives everyone an equal chance to try Saranghae with the 45-day risk-free in-home trial.

Starting at 6:00 am today, the order hotline will be open for the next 48 hours. All you have to do is call TOLL FREE 888-971-0980 and provide the operator with the special discount approval code: DRE20. The company will do the rest.

If you call and do not immediately get through, please be patient and call back. Supplies are limited for this special offer, and callers that don't get through to the order hotline within the next 48 hours will be forced to get their products on backorder.

This past weekend's storms caused extensive damage at Lake Shore Cemetery in Hagar Township.

Weekend storm slams north Berrien, Van Buren counties

By TONY WITTKOWSKI
HP Staff Writer

A storm that slammed Southwest Michigan late Friday night and early Saturday led to multiple reports of downed trees and power outages, along with damage to cars and roofs hit by debris.

Mike Mattix, fire chief for the North Berrien Fire Rescue Department, said his department was consistently responding to calls related to the storm, until about 1:30 a.m. Saturday.

The calls ranged from downed power lines to trees blocking roads.

"At that time the storm was going pretty good," he said. "Everyone got reports from the National Weather Service for the possibility of strong storms. As far as estimated damage and loss, I couldn't tell you."

Mattix said Coloma Township, Hagar Township, Riverside and Watervliet were hit very hard. The storm, which moved east and also left heavy damage across parts of Van Buren County, produced frequent lightning and winds in excess of 60 mph.

Harrison and Hagar Shore roads had power lines down and a large tree branch blocking the roads. The Sarett Nature Center area was also reportedly hit hard, with a lot of tree damage.

Emergency responders barricaded the roads and continued to take calls, as the 911 dispatch center was lively Friday night and into Saturday morning.

Mattix did not know of any injuries related to the storm, but Indiana Michigan Power reported a slew of power outages to handle throughout the weekend.

I&M officials said the utility restored power to 20,000 customers who lost service.

Crews continued to find damaged equipment as they addressed outages into Monday. I&M reported a total number of 34 broken poles, including 22 in the Benton Harbor area. About 34 spans of wire were down, I&M officials said.

ABOVE, RIGHT: The weekend storm knocked down trees and power lines throughout north Berrien County and Van Buren County, including at Lake Shore Cemetery in Hagar Township.

IN BRIEF

Cass County records fifth COVID-19 death

Cass County recorded another COVID-19 death over the weekend, the first death recorded in about three weeks.

This brings the county's total deaths to five.

Cass County recorded an additional six COVID-19 cases over the weekend, bringing its total to 124 cases. The county had 78 people recovered as of Friday.

Van Buren County added two cases over the weekend, bringing its total number of cases to an even 200. The county still has six deaths. The county had 125 people recovered as of Friday.

Berrien County added 17 COVID-19 cases over the weekend, backtracking from only having 12 cases recorded all of last week. There are now 718 cumulative cases. The county still has 60 recorded deaths.

In addition, Berrien County actually lost a recovery over the weekend. The county is now sitting at 621 recoveries.

Spectrum Health Lakeland was treating one COVID-19 patient as of Monday morning.

Grant enhances SHAES water rescue capabilities

SOUTH HAVEN — South Haven Area Emergency Services (SHAES) is broadening its ability to respond to water rescue incidents by providing its paid-on-call members with water rescue equipment that stays with the responders all of the time.

Thanks to a $3,750 grant from the Albemarle Corporation of South Haven, 19 SHAES responders now have a fitted PFD – personalized flotation device (life jacket), helmet and throw-bag containing 50 feet of rope.

SHAES equipment (ambulances, rescue truck, engines) also contain this equipment, but frequently the paid-on-call members who respond from their home or workplace are the first to arrive on an emergency scene.

"Minutes, if not seconds, count in this type of emergency situation," said Chief Brandon Hinz. "We are grateful for the continuing support of Albemarle as we strive to protect our community to the best of our ability."

Hinz also thanked former chief Ron Wise who pursued funding for the acquisition.

In recent weeks SHAES staff has been conducting its annual water rescue drills on Lake Michigan and Lake Arvesta. A recent drill included members of the South Haven Police Department whose officers also have PFDs in their patrol cars.

Chief: Police vehicles damaged in protest

DETROIT (AP) — A demonstration in Detroit against police brutality and racial injustice became violent as two police vehicles were damaged amid demands by one group that authorities investigate the actions of the officers.

No injuries were reported from the protest Sunday night on the city's southwest side, police Chief James Craig told reporters Monday.

Craig showed dashcam footage from the two vehicles. Footage from one showed a group of protesters converging in front of one police vehicle and at least two protesters jumping on its hood.

The vehicle's rear window was smashed and the officer driving began to accelerate because it wasn't clear if "they were being fired upon," Craig said.

St. Joseph school board approves reduced budget

District foresees $700 per student reduction in state funding

By TONY WITTKOWSKI
HP Staff Writer

ST. JOSEPH — The St. Joseph school board approved next year's budget knowing things will change as the state sets its own budget.

After holding a special meeting Monday, which included a budget hearing and virtual presentation, school officials approved the 2020-21 budget facing a projected $2.1 million loss in funding.

Brenda Graham, chief financial officer, said the district is facing an estimated reduction of $700 per pupil.

Board President Barry Conybeare said the 2020-21 budget was made with little to no knowledge of how much funding the state will be giving to school districts. However, the board was forced to create this budget, as the new fiscal year begins July 1.

"This year, with all of the unknowns, we put together the best budget we could," Conybeare said. "We will probably be doing more budget amendments this year than ever before."

Conybeare said the district's finance committee meets virtually every Friday and they plan to do so throughout the summer.

The district expenditures reflect a reduction of $638,000 from the prior year.

These expenditures include savings from attrition and staffing changes, line item reductions, increased costs due to virtual programming, estimated COVID-19 costs, and current year pickups from prior year savings, assuming the district returns to face-to-face instruction.

Graham said they plan to use a portion of the district's fund equity to cover the difference between the decreased revenue and planned expenditures.

"We will be ending our fiscal year with a fund balance of $3.6 million, which is 12.2 percent of expenditures," she said. "This budget is a snapshot in time of assumptions and projections without knowing our funding, our pupil enrollment, COVID impacts and requirements for opening schools and what our school instructional environment will look like in the fall."

She said school officials should know more when the governor releases her guidelines on reopening school districts for the fall.

Earlier this month, Superintendent Thomas Bruce presented a "budget roadmap," which outlined the district's plans relative to anticipated state education budget cuts.

State tax revenues are down 43 percent from April 2019 to April 2020, as Bruce said the state is facing a $6.3 billion revenue deficit this and next year. The state's School Aid Fund is expected to lose $1.2 billion.

Other agenda items

The board voted to establish tax levies heading into the new school year.

The board unanimously voted to have the district continue to levy the 18 mills for its operating fund, the 0.9946 mills for the building and site fund. However, the debt retirement levies have decreased slightly, from 0.372 mills to 0.370 mills.

The board also approved its final general fund budget for the 2019-20 school year.

With its final budget amendment, the district showed a slight increase in revenues of $59,000 and an increase of expenditures of $77,000, for an overall net change of $18,000 over the March amendment.

While the district did show some savings in the budgeted costs for substitutes, fuel, custodial and utilities, Graham said the district was required to continue paying all employees.

Dating back to when the quarantine began, the district saw increased costs for software and supplies – plus a shift in food service costs.

Lakeshore finds $600,000 in savings

By LOUISE WREGE
HP Staff Writer

STEVENSVILLE — Smart money management during the last three months of the school year led to Lakeshore Public Schools spending about $600,000 less than anticipated, school board trustees learned Monday.

"A lot of that is related to (the COVID-19 pandemic) in terms of not spending some supply money at year end," Chief Financial Officer Tracy Althouse told trustees during their special board meeting, held via Zoom.

Online learning classes started in mid-March and were in place until the end of the school year to help slow the spread of the virus.

Althouse said some of the unused money is from the district's CTE programs. She said the district received waivers so that money left over can be used in the next fiscal year, which starts Wednesday.

Superintendent Phil Freeman said that money will partially help with the anticipated $1.8 million cut in state funding for the 2020-21 school year. Officials are expecting a drop in state revenue due to many businesses being closed for a couple of months as the state sought to limit the spread of the novel coronavirus. Bars, restaurants and hair salons were allowed to open in a limited capacity earlier this month. Gyms remain closed.

Freeman said they calculated into the budget a $650 drop in per pupil funding from the state.

He said the 2020-21 budget may be impacted by safety rules from Gov. Gretchen Whitmer, which are expected to be announced today. But by law, school boards must approve balanced budgets by the end of the fiscal year.

Trustees also approved starting school before Labor Day this fall, on Aug. 31.

Freeman said it won't be much different from when Labor Day is near the first of the month of September.

HOROSCOPE

By EUGENIA LAST

TUESDAY, JUNE 30

If you follow your intuition, you'll make progress this year. Realizing that you've had a change of heart will help you let go of what isn't working for you and push you in a direction that allows you to reach the happiness you desire. Leave nothing to chance and set a tight budget.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Choose your words thoughtfully and proceed with caution. Put your plans in place before you share your intentions. Your success depends on maintaining control and avoiding interference.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Focus on what's important to you. Learn new skills and research services you can offer others. Find a practical way to use your attributes to prosper.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Put a smile on someone's face. Reaching out and doing your part will lead to an unexpected chance to improve your life. Share your ideas, offer advice and make a difference.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Carefully examine an offer someone makes that promises to help you look and do your best. Refuse to let someone pressure you into something you don't want to do.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Put your emotions into whatever you decide to do. Head in a direction that feels comfortable. If you plan your actions using intelligence as well as intuition, you will succeed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Make alterations at home that are conducive to helping you keep the peace. Use your space in a way that helps you add to your income.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Think big, but when it comes to putting your ideas in motion, stick to a budget and a carefully made, practical plan. An in-depth discussion will yield positive results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Spend more time addressing your concerns and less time trying to appease others. The more you give, the more others will expect from you. Take care of your needs first.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A change to how you handle your money will help you avoid coming up short. Put more time and effort into maintaining good health. Make fitness, diet and rest priorities.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Keep your thoughts to yourself. If you act in haste or make assumptions, you will have to reverse your steps as the day progresses. Focus on fitness, health and personal growth.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's up to you to initiate change. Consider what makes you happy and pursue your dreams. If you share your feelings and intentions with someone you care about, you'll be given advice and support.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Get serious about what you want. Dig in and start the ball rolling, and you will discover something you enjoy doing that can result in extra income.

Distancing from Trump? Some Republicans step up critiques

By STEVE PEOPLES. JONATHAN LEMIRE and JILL COLVIN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — For more than three years, President Donald Trump instilled such fear in the Republican Party's leaders that most kept criticism of his turbulent leadership or inconsistent politics to themselves.

That's beginning to change.

Four months before voters decide the Republican president's reelection, some in Trump's party are daring to say the quiet part out loud as Trump struggles to navigate competing national crises and a scattershot campaign message.

"He is losing," former New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie, a Trump friend and confidant, said Sunday of Trump's reelection prospects on ABC's "This Week." "And if he doesn't change course, both in terms of the substance of what he's discussing and the way that he approaches the American people, then he will lose."

Beyond politics, Trump's allies – even some in his own administration – are distancing themselves from his policies.

While Trump avoids wearing a mask in public, Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell said, "We must have no stigma – none – about wearing masks when we leave our homes." Vice President Mike Pence was pictured this weekend wearing a mask and urged other Americans to do the same. And Wyoming Rep. Liz Cheney, the No. 3 Republican in the House, tweeted a picture of her father, former Vice President Dick Cheney, wearing a mask with the hashtag #realmenwearmasks.

At the same time, Trump has been criticized by some Republicans for inconsistent leadership during the sweeping national protests against police brutality. On Sunday, the president tweeted and subsequently deleted a video in which a supporter used the white supremacist mantra "White power."

South Carolina Sen. Tim Scott, the GOP's sole Black senator, called Trump's decision to share the video "indefensible."

Make no mistake, Trump still has a tight grip on the party. And the intensifying concerns are remarkably similar to those that emerged in 2016, when Trump overcame glaring personal and political liabilities to defeat Democrat Hillary Clinton. The splits signal that Republicans are aware of the president's weak political standing and may feel increasingly free to break from him as voting nears.

While Election Day isn't until Nov. 3, early voting in a handful of key states, including the battlegrounds of Pennsylvania, Michigan and Virginia, begins in mid-September.

Trump has come to accept that he is currently trailing

Alex Brandon / AP

President Donald Trump pumps his fist June 25 as he walks on the South Lawn after arriving on Marine One at the White House.

Democratic rival Joe Biden following a series of phone calls and polling presentations with advisers, according to four campaign officials and Republicans close to the campaign who spoke on condition of anonymity because they weren't authorized to publicly discuss private conversations. He has responded with a mix of disbelief and anger, including frequent frustration that the pandemic robbed him of a strong economy and drowned out the attacks he hoped to land against Biden, according to the officials.

The president's popularity with the party base remains strong. But in an implicit acknowledgement of GOP anxiety, Trump's deputy campaign manager Bill Stepien released a memo Sunday evening questioning polling data that gives Biden an advantage, while pointing to voter participation numbers in recent primaries suggesting Trump's supporters are excited.

"Clearly, Democrats have not rallied around their flawed candidate," Stepien wrote. "Today there can be no debate that President Trump has a decided advantage in base enthusiasm and can be most confident that his supporters will turn out."

Biden pollster John Anzalone laughed at the argument.

"You know a candidate is in trouble when their only argument for reelection is the enthusiasm of their dwindling pool of supporters, which is now barely over 40 percent," he said.

processes and to protect all of our residents," the statement reads in part.

"The St. Joseph City Commission realizes and accepts that the root cause of these events can no longer be viewed as one bad officer, but a result of hundreds of years of oppression and racism built into the structure of our society. To remove oppression and racism from society's structure we must look inward to our hearts and souls, and work to ensure the best possible future of our city," the statement goes on to say.

With that, the city commission vowed to ask community residents to take an active role in forging changes.

Monday's meeting set that process in motion, as commissioners heard from residents and community leaders who want to help.

Tami Miller, deputy director of the Krasl Art Center, said public art is under great scrutiny, and the Krasl wants to be actively involved in the social justice efforts.

Laurie Marshall, president of the Heritage Museum and Cultural Center Board of Directors, said the effort is "very important to us." She said the board will be talking about a possible interactive multicultural lecture series, and a permanent or traveling exhibit celebrating the multicultural makeup of the community.

Lisa Hubs, a 14-year resident of St. Joseph, said Black people have told her they feel safer in high-crime areas of Benton Harbor than they do in St. Joseph.

"We can't operate St. Joseph in a bubble. How do we find a way that Black people are welcome in St. Joseph."

Todman said, "I don't have an answer. I do know it's an issue. I hear you. It's real."

Another topic of discussion Monday was police reform.

St. Joseph Public Safety Director Steve Neubecker said he has implemented a new policy requiring all traffic stops to be documented/categorized by race, so the city will have statistics about equity and/or inequity in law enforcement.

"There's work that needs to be done, and we're willing to do it. It would put a smile on our faces to see people of different races interacting in our city," Neubecker said. He said he also is requiring that police officers spend at least one hour of every shift outside of their patrol cars, getting out and talking to people.

Rayonte Bell, who is Black and is running for a seat on the Berrien County Board of Commissioners, thanked commissioners for hosting the social justice conversations.

"This honest dialogue is very much needed. We need to change our perceptions of how we see each other," he said. "This is a new generation. We're saying no to the old ways, and this right here is a big step in the right direction."

St. Joseph City Manager John Hodgson urged people to stay involved with the effort, even if they have not previously participated in a public forum.

"We're all first-time listeners, and first-time callers," he said.

Anyone who wants to suggest a topic for one of the Monday evening social justice conversations may do so by sending an email to socialjustice@sjcity.com.

charge of the core downtown area. The money they collect goes to pay for the part-time person who cleans the streets, the holiday decorations, the summer plant decorations. That appointed board takes care of all that.

What do you like best about your job?

It's always changing and I like to see projects when they're done, how they turned out.

What are you most proud of, or are there any favorite projects you've worked on?

I think one thing is probably the sign ordinance that was adopted in January. It took about two years to go through that process to get that all done. As time goes on we'll see more and more of those changes and how the town will change with new sign rules.

The original sign ordinance was from 1980 and it was a little outdated. So this one's a little more user-friendly. We put pictures in it. The planning commission worked on it. They made the recommendations, they reviewed it and recommended the city commission approve it and they did.

What are the major changes?

In the sign ordinance, it gives different regulations now for temporary signs. And that's in follow-up to a 2015 U.S. Supreme Court ruling on signs and how they can be viewed and reviewed. We also put in limits to changeable message boards and I think that was important. We decreased the size a changeable message board could be.

Is there a reason?

Just for appearance, aesthetics, and then it also kind of relates to the 2016 master plan where it talks about changing the aesthetics in the community and decreasing the amount of sign clutter that is out there.

What have been some of the challenges with the coronavirus?

Things just take a little longer. We've been working remotely this whole time. So people submit things online. It just takes a little longer.

Since we closed, we recently processed an application for a business that wants to expand, and that got approved last month.

And that was Silver Harbor?

Yes.

And the Pleasant Street Plaza, was that your idea?

No, not completely. There were some staff people and the two business owners approached the city about it.

So you're not going to take credit for the idea?

No. No, I won't. We probably copied other places. Robert (Montgomery) probably spearheaded the most.

What do you do for fun?

I golf a little. Travel.

What would people be surprised to know about you?

Probably some of the places I've traveled to. I've been to Iceland. Most people haven't been to Iceland.

And that commuting to work doesn't bother me. I was always accustomed to driving anyway, coming from the Chicago area.

Is there anything else you'd like to talk about?

Yes, the Downtown Vision Master Plan that was adopted in January. That was a nice project to work through. It's been a little waylaid because of the coronavirus, but in the coming months and years there's a lot of good ideas that I think people will like to see. I think it's going to help private property owners envision what they can do with their properties.

Is there anything in particular in the plan that residents should be excited about?

Just some of the ways that under-utilized property could be developed. We made a conscious effort to show up at events, to talk to people walking along the sidewalk, get their input. I think that was probably one of the first times that's happened in awhile here. People didn't have to come to a meeting. We came to them, to places where people were.

And we had a couple online surveys too. I think people want to maintain the charm and character of the downtown but they also want to see it updated.

BRIDGE

The "Peanuts" cartoon bridge deals continue to appear.

This time, Snoopy, playing with Woodstock and two of his friends, was the declarer in three no-trump. What should he have done after West led the spade four?

In the bidding, Snoopy (South) might have opened one diamond because his hand was worth more than its face value of 17 points. The five-card suit and the 7 ace-king points (2 for each ace and 1 for the king) add extra value. The Kaplan-Rubens evaluation method (which gets most players' votes for the most accurate) rates this hand at 18.35 points. Then, though, North would have had a close call. K-R makes his hand worth 8.8 points only, so he should respond one no-trump. Then South would jump to three no-trump. Probably East would lead the heart jack, giving North an easy time. He would play low from the board (South) and take two spades, two hearts and five diamonds.

When Snoopy opened one no-trump, North judged well to invite game, and South had a clear-cut raise.

The reader did not learn how Snoopy played until the next day. The game was interrupted because Snoopy had to try to shoot down the Red Baron. When Snoopy returned to the aerodrome, he reported to his captain and asked him what he should have done. When Snoopy got back to the game, he admitted that the captain said he should have led a low heart to the queen.

The truth was out. Snoopy incorrectly played on clubs, but the defenders got their spades established and took three spades and two clubs to defeat the contract.

Boyfriend's sudden ghosting causes hurt and confusion

Jeanne Phillips
Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am dealing with the worst heartbreak ever. I don't know what I did to make my boyfriend stop liking me. He won't talk to me or text me back, and now he has blocked me on Facebook. One minute he said that he would always hang out with me and the next he told me to stop messaging him and blocked me. All of this has made me go out of control, and now I want to hate on everyone. How can I stop this awful hurt? – Love Hurts In Oregon

DEAR LOVE HURTS: Before I answer that question, I want to weigh in on your signature, "Love Hurts." What I need to impress upon you is, love DOESN'T hurt. Real love makes people feel BETTER.

It's time to stop asking yourself what you did wrong to be getting the treatment he is doling out. Allow me an educated guess: He may feel guilty because he met someone else and doesn't have the courage to own up to it. Time will tell if I'm right.

The way to soothe this ache and refrain from lashing out at others would be to remember they are blameless. By taking your pain out on them, you are isolating only yourself. Get rid of any mementos that remind you of him. If a song reminds you of him, don't play it again. Keep yourself busy. Focus on other things and talk with your friends and family about your feelings. If you do, you will soon realize that others have experienced the same disappointment you have. And, above all, remember that although this experience may have been romantic for a while, it has run its course.

DEAR ABBY: I am at my wits' end with my husband. I have a vision impairment as a result of ocular cancer, and he refuses to stop making fun of me about it. He teases me constantly about being blind, about not being able to read, and about how bad my eyes are.

My eyes ARE very bad, some days much worse than others, but I'm not totally blind. And, Abby, I can read – just not the way I used to. When I tell him it hurts my feelings, he either gets angry at me for being "too sensitive" or brushes it off because he's "just being honest."

He is very religious, and I have thought about reaching out to his pastor about this because it bothers me so much, but I'm agnostic and don't have a relationship with him. It hurts me, but it's almost worse because our daughter watches it, and I don't want her to think it's OK for her daddy to bully me like this. – Challenged In Tennessee

DEAR CHALLENGED: You are NOT too sensitive, and your husband is NOT just being honest! He may be punishing you because you had the nerve to get ocular cancer, or he may simply have a sadistic streak. This is not how good Christians behave; it is how hypocrites do.

That you are an agnostic – many intelligent and pious individuals are, by the way – should not stop you from having a conversation with your husband's pastor. However, even if the pastor were to craft a sermon on the subject, I doubt it would change your husband's behavior. If you are going to continue in this marriage, you must find a way to change the way you react to the mistreatment you are receiving. Perhaps once he finds he can't get the reaction he's looking for, he will stop.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Contact Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

Keep your mitts off your ex-wife's new friend

Carolyn Hax

Carolyn Hax is away. The following is from Feb. 5, 2006.

DEAR CAROLYN: "Susie" and I separated last year. Our divorce will be final soon. We have a young son and maintain a friendly relationship.

When we separated, Susie moved with our son. Susie's new next-door neighbor Debbie has a young daughter, and Susie and Debbie have become friends. They babysit for each other, etc.

I have bumped into Debbie from time to time, and we have developed a strong connection/mutual attraction. I recently made Susie really mad about something and called Debbie to talk to her and learn more. This flipped Susie out, and she demanded that I have no contact with Debbie.

In order to maintain harmonious relations with Susie for the sake of our son, I have had no contact with Debbie. But I hate to just let go where there was a strong mutual attraction. Suggestions? – Perplexed in PA

Perplexed in PA: Then don't let go, and go to war with Susie at your son's expense. That is your other option. Please don't ask me to provide a rationale for choosing it.

I could argue, certainly, that Susie's demand is neither rational nor fair; you're all autonomous adults, and soon you'll all be single ones, too. Plus, if Susie allows even a speck of her outrage to sully her son's relationship with his dad, then her offense would be worse than your hitting on Debbie.

But, come on. There are no other women to hit on? You have to have the woman next door to your wife? The first new friend of her single-mom life? The one who's supporting her through this? Keep your mitts off your wife's friend.

DEAR CAROLYN: I'm 24. He's 24. I could move in with him. He cringes at the idea. I could spend every single second with him. He cringes at the idea.

Maybe I'm being too needy or maybe he's changed. I can't tell. I feel like he has been regressing – it was he who said "I love you" first, who wanted to start this relationship and to spend every second together. Now that the newness has worn off (eight months), he's not so excited to see me.

Is this natural or do I find someone who meets my (unrealistic?) expectations?

My short-term plan: He asked me to dinner tonight but I told him I had plans with my friends – I think he needs to learn how to miss me. – "Sue"

"Sue": I think he should already know how to miss you, without manipulation.

And that you should know how to make plans with your friends, without ulterior motives.

Certainly newness has a romance to it that's easy to crave and achingly tough to sustain. But that's about all it's good for; as a measure of what will follow, it's useless. Sometimes it matures into love, and sometimes it degenerates into circular discussions about how much time you're supposed to want to spend together – and you don't get to choose which you get. (And if you get togetherness "every single second," pass.)

You can't get newness back, by definition, so forget what you had and face what you've got. If you have to work to hold his attention now, then you always will. And he's cringing. That can't be what you want.

BRIDGE

John Barrymore said, "One of my chief regrets during my recent years in the theater is that I couldn't sit in the audience and watch me."

When you are defending at the bridge table, if you send your partner a signal, you hope that he is watching, interpreting correctly and trusting you.

How should the defense go against four spades after West leads his singleton diamond?

In the old days, South would not have opened with a weak two-bid, because he had four cards in the other major and a void, making his hand eminently playable in either red suit should partner have length there. Nowadays, you pre-empt first and worry about other fits later, probably in the postmortem.

East won with his diamond ace and returned the diamond 10. West happily trumped and tried to cash the club ace, but South unsportingly ruffed, drew trumps and claimed an overtrick.

"Why didn't you trust me?" asked East. "I led back my highest diamond, a clear suit-preference signal for hearts, the higher-ranking of the other two side suits. If you return a heart at trick three, we beat the contract by two tricks."

After apologizing, West suggested that perhaps East should have overcalled four no-trump, showing at least 5-5 in two of the unbid suits. He claimed that five clubs was laydown.

East agreed that they had only two top losers, but pointed out that a trump lead would defeat the contract. He also mentioned that he had a pretty weak hand for coming in at the five-level.

OBITUARIES

Priscilla Demske

Jan. 23, 1928 – June 27, 2020

Priscilla Demske, 92, of Eau Claire passed away peacefully with family by her side on June 27, 2020, at Hanson Hospice Center in Stevensville.

Due to COVID-19, a private family gathering will take place at a future date.

Online messages can be shared at www.bowermanfuneral.com.

Memorial donations can be made to Hanson Hospice Center.

A special thank you to all the staff at Hanson for keeping her safe and pain-free.

Priscilla's deep faith in God always carried her through life's troubled times. She was a kind-hearted, hard-working "farmerette." She and Art, along with daughter Kim, grew many fruits and vegetables and sold them to the patrons of the South Bend market for 48 years.

She was an excellent cook and loved all animals. Her last years were spent shelling corn to feed the wildlife at her house on the farm. Her time spent with her family was joyous and she cherished all the holidays. Visits from a friend, James Ferry, always put a smile on her face.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Arthur Demske; first husband, William Bandurski; brothers, Ervin and Alvin Fisher; and her parents, Herman and Martha Fisher.

She is survived by daughters, Kim (LeRoy) Witucki of Granger, Ind., Jo-Ann (Bob) Bailey of Eau Claire, Pam (Jerry) Hickethier of Mesa, Ariz., and Wendy (Bill) McCormick of Sun City West, Ariz.; nephews, Dave (Ann) Fege and Arnold (Patty) Fege; seven grandchildren; and nine great-grandchildren.

Her precious smile and humor will be sadly missed. She can rest in peace – her pain is gone now.

Robert 'Bob' Edwin Oviatt

Oct. 8, 1960 – June 27, 2020

Robert "Bob" Edwin Oviatt, 59, died peacefully at home in his man-cave in Eau Claire on June 27, 2020.

Born Oct. 8, 1960, in Owosso, Mich., Robert was an outdoorsman, enjoying mountaineering from a young age. He was passionate about his family, his Harley, deer hunting and playing with his bands, "Freestone" and "The Loose Cannons." He adored good music, and he instilled that in his children. His quiet presence, his goofy personality and his sense of humor will all be greatly missed.

Robert was welcomed into heaven by his father and mother, William and Ruth Oviatt; and his brother and sister-in-law, Scott and Mary Oviatt.

He is survived by his wife, Amy; his children, Leslie (Will) Harrison, Kyle Oviatt and Callie (Daniel) McDonough; and countless family and friends.

A celebration of life will be held at a later date.

Joseph J. Cavazos

March 12, 1999 – June 25, 2020

Joseph J. Cavazos, 21, of Coloma passed away unexpectedly on Thursday, June 25, 2020, in Decatur as the result of an automobile accident.

A funeral service will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday, June 30, at Duffield & Pastrick Family Funeral Home in Coloma. Visitation will begin one hour prior to the service at 1 p.m.

Memorial donations in Joseph's memory can be made to the family in care of his father, Joseph Cavazos.

Leave a message, or share a memory with the family, online at www.duffieldpastrick.com.

Joseph was born March 12, 1999, in Kalamazoo, Mich., to Joseph Cavazos and Nora Vela. He was a graduate of Hartford High School and was, until recently, working with a landscaping firm.

Joseph had a very big heart, sharing it with everyone in his life. He was known as a good brother, son and friend to those who knew him. In his free time, he loved to do drawings, spend time in the garage working on cars or be outside working in the yard. He will be missed by all.

Joseph is survived by his mother, Nora (Gerardo) Aguirre of Hartford; his father, Joseph (Amber) Cavazos of Coloma; his brother and sisters, Sergio and Ginessa Aguirre, both of Hartford, and Mia and Aliya Cavazos, both of Coloma; his grandparents, Rene Vela, Elena Hidalgo, Angel Aguirre and Ernestina Cisneros; his godparents, Delilah Mireles and Rogelio Beraza; and many aunts and uncles.

Joseph was preceded in death by his sister, Justice Victoria Cavazos; his stepsister, Zandra Liliana Aguirre; and grandparents, Hermelinda Vela and Henry Cavazos.

Bernard A. Hudson

Feb. 15, 1925 – June 29, 2020

Bernard Anthony Hudson, 95, of Evansville, Ind., passed away Monday, June 29, 2020, at his home, surrounded by his children.

Bernard was born in Evansville on Feb. 15, 1925, to the late Burtis and Monica (Mattingly) Hudson. He graduated from Memorial High School and attended the University of Evansville. Bernard retired from Whirlpool Corporation after 41 years of service, having worked in both Evansville and St. Joseph. Bernard was a hard worker and loved his family dearly. In his early years, he worked a full-time job and attended night school at U of E, all while personally building the family home in Evansville. He also participated in activities such as singing in the church choir with his beautiful alto voice, while still finding time to be a dependable, supportive and amazing father.

He was eventually transferred to Whirlpool Corporate Headquarters in Michigan. When moving to Michigan, the family bought a home on Lake Michigan where many fond memories were made. Bernard was a faithful member of the Catholic faith and served in many capacities. After retiring, Bernard enjoyed traveling, RV camping, bicycling and playing tennis. He was the loving caregiver for his first and second wife as their health declined, providing total care for them in their home. Lastly, Bernard was an incredible grandfather. He took every opportunity to talk to his grandchildren individually, checking in on them and giving them wise advice. Bernard will truly be missed.

Bernard is survived by his daughters, Mary Brill (Arthur) of Evansville, Beverly Fowler of Evansville, Barbara Wiedmayer (Mark) of Kalamazoo and Colleen Reisterer (Mike) of Kalamazoo; sons, Brian Hudson (Annie) of Evansville and Steven Hudson (Debbie) of Evansville; sister, Joyce Soule of Indianapolis; brother, Donald Hudson (Pat) of Velpen, Ind.; 22 grandchildren; 24 great-grandchildren; daughter-in-law, Diane Hudson of Brooklyn, Mich.; sister-in-law, Eloise; and by his brother-in-law, Friedman.

Bernard was preceded in death by his first wife, Mildred (Neuendorf) Hudson in 1993; second wife, Doris Hudson in 2008; and third wife, Halla Hudson in 2011. He was also preceded in death by his son, Bruce Hudson; sisters, Marie and Norma; and by his brothers, Clinton and Alvin.

Services will be held at 10 a.m. Friday, July 3, at Browning Funeral Home, 738 Diamond Ave., Evansville, IN 47711, with Father Jason Gries officiating. Burial will follow in St. Joseph Catholic Cemetery. Friends may visit from 3-7 p.m. Thursday, July 2, at Browning Funeral Home, and again from 9 a.m. until service time at the funeral home on Friday. Memorial contributions may be made to the ALS Association, 1300 Wilson Blvd., Suite 600, Arlington, VA 22209. Condolences may be made online at www.browningfuneral.com.

R. Nadine Trail

Oct. 16, 1924 – June 28, 2020

R. Nadine Trail, 95, of Benton Harbor went to be with her Lord and her husband, James, on Sunday, June 28, 2020. She passed away peacefully at Royalton Manor Care Facility. The Trail family would like to extend their gratitude to the staff at Royalton Manor for their attentiveness and loving care for many years.

A Celebration of Life service will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday, July 2, at the Safe Harbor Church, 3552 S. Pipestone Road, Sodus, with visitation beginning at 10 a.m. Burial will immediately follow in Shanghai Cemetery in Pipestone Township. In lieu of flowers, donations in Nadine's memory can be made to Safe Harbor Church of God. Arrangements are by the Fairplain Chapel of Florin Funeral Service in Benton Township.

Nadine was born in Center Town, Ky., on Oct. 16, 1924, and was one of six children born to John and Myrtle (Loney) Stevens. The family moved to Michigan in 1936. She married her true love, James Trail, also from Kentucky, who she met in Michigan. They had four children.

Nadine is survived by her sons, Ronald Trail of Eau Claire, Dennis (Barb) Trail of Benton Harbor and Steve (Tia) Trail of Berrien Springs; sister, Betty Vickory of Hampstead, N.C.; a niece who was like a daughter, Nadine (Fred) Steinke; four grandchildren: Melissa (Mike) August of League City, Texas, Tony Trail of Benton Harbor, Matt (Amanda) Trail of Stevensville and Zachary Trail of Irvine, Calif.; four great-grandchildren: Austin Hampton, Myles August and Moses and Marley Trail; many nieces and nephews; and countless other family and friends who were blessed by her loving kindness.

She was preceded in death by her husband, James; and oldest son, Kenny, who passed at age 2 while James was fighting in World War II. James never got to meet his son. She was also preceded by her sister, Cloris Fisher; and her brothers, Ed, Tom and Neil Stevens.

Nadine challenged herself to go back to school to obtain her GED, and she did. She graduated from Lakeshore High School when she was in her 60s. She retired from Sears and Roebuck and was the last founding member and Matriarch of Safe Harbor Church of God, where she held positions of Women's Missionary leader, Victory Leaders Band Director and state records clerk.

Nadine touched the lives of so many people with her smile, love, prayers and generosity. She maintained her trademark sense of humor all the way to the end. She is loved by many and will remain in their hearts and memories forever.

Marsan Virginia Beehler Schaer

July 28, 1941 – June 28, 2020

Marsan Beehler Schaer died June 28, 2020.

Her family will celebrate her life at noon on Friday, July 3, with visitation prior starting at 11 a.m., at Hutchins Funeral Home in Watervliet. Memorials may be made to the American Cancer Society for cancer research. You are invited to leave a message of comfort for Marsan's family at hutchinsfuneral.com.

Marsan was born on July 28, 1941, in Springfield, Ill., the daughter of Clarence and Mildred (Geier) Beehler. After attending Elmhurst College and Purdue University, she earned bachelor's and master's degrees from Western Michigan University. Over a 32 year teaching career, Marson taught at Lawrence High School, Lake Michigan College and North Berrien Adult Education.

On September 23, 1962, Marsan married Darrin Schaer. She and her family were involved for many years with the Great Expectations Equine 4-H Club. Marsan was a board member at the Eau Claire District Library, was a volunteer with adult literacy groups, was a reader, a traveler and had hand-embroidered many table cloths. She was a choir member, church organist and director of handbell choirs.

Her children and grandchildren brought her joy. Marsan is survived by her husband, Darrin; her son and daughter-in-law, Brian and Tammie Schaer, and their children, Evan Joseph and Lauren Taylor; her daughter and son-in-law, Christine and James Kollath Jr., and their children, Avery Chantal and Benjamin James. She is also survived by her brother, Ken Beehler; her nieces, Susanne DiVanni and Dena (Tim) Garland; other family members; her church friends at Pilgrim Congregational United Church of Christ, the First United Methodist Church in Berrien Springs and St. Paul's Church of Christ; and by her friend and confidant, Gloria Muth.

Preceding Marsan in death were her parents; her parents-in-law, Ernest and Freda Schaer; her brother-in-law, Gordon Schaer; her sister-in-law, Carol Beehler; and her niece, Kerry Jo Beehler Ridley.

Getting it straight

The Herald-Palladium makes every effort to ensure accuracy in its stories.

If you think there is an error, please contact the editor of the page on which it occurred. If you are unsure of whom to contact, call Local News Editor Dale Brewer at 429-3797.

Broker Margo Green is the owner of the Berrien Property real estate office and Jan Jacobs is an agent at her office. An old file photo was used in error on page A1 of the June 26 edition to illustrate a promotion of a real estate story. The photo pictured "for sale" signs from another real estate agency, and Green and Jacobs' names were on the signs. They have not been affiliated with that agency for several years.

One of the last holdouts on service organizations that barred women is seeing four women take charge of its southwest Michigan clubs. Rotary International's clubs in St. Joseph, Stevensville, Dowagiac and Benton Harbor will induct women presidents in the next several weeks. "It's exciting. I have a lot of enthusiasm and I hope (the enthusiasm) is contagious," said Lynn Hannah, inducted Thursday as president of the Lakeshore Rotary Club in Stevensville. Pauline Miller will be inducted as president of the Benton Harbor Rotary Club-Sunrise; Donna Probasco was inducted Monday for the St. Joseph-Benton Harbor Rotary Club; and Diana Kingsley was installed as the Dowagiac Rotary Club president on Thursday.

Karla Cook of Fairplain has been appointed principal of Lake Michigan Catholic's elementary school in Benton Harbor, according to Robert Cathcart, executive director of the Catholic school system.

Mrs. Cook, a longtime Catholic staff member, replaces Sister Rita Wenzlick in the post. Mrs. Cook is a graduate of the former St. Joseph Catholic High School and received her bachelor's and master's degrees from Western Michigan University.

A $1 million visitors center at the site of the $300 million Donald C. Cook nuclear plant, Bridgman, is scheduled to open tomorrow. A spokesman for the center said it would be open daily. The center overlooks the construction site of the Indiana and Michigan Electric Company plant. The actual construction site is off-limits to visitors, but more of the actual work and progress could be seen from the center than from the site itself. The first unit is to be in operation in the fall of 1972.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, June 30, the 182nd day of 2020. There are 184 days left in the year.

Highlight in history:

On June 30, 1971, the Supreme Court ruled, 6-3, that the government could not prevent The New York Times or The Washington Post from publishing the Pentagon Papers.

On this date:

In 1865, eight people, including Mary Surratt and Dr. Samuel Mudd, were convicted by a military commission of conspiring with John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of President Abraham Lincoln. (Four defendants, including Surratt, were executed; Mudd was sentenced to life in prison, but was pardoned by President Andrew Johnson in 1869.)

In 1918, labor activist and socialist Eugene V. Debs was arrested in Cleveland, charged under the Espionage Act of 1917 for a speech he'd made two weeks earlier denouncing U.S. involvement in World War I. (Debs was sentenced to prison and disenfranchised for life.)

In 1934, Adolf Hitler launched his "blood purge" of political and military rivals in Germany in what came to be known as "The Night of the Long Knives."

WHITMER

"All Michiganders, no matter their community or the color of their skin, deserve equal treatment under the law," Whitmer said in a news release.

"This proposal will help us ensure that law enforcement officials treat all Michiganders with humanity and respect, and will help us keep our communities safe. I will continue working with leaders in law enforcement to make public safety more just and equitable in Michigan."

The measures Whitmer called for Monday include:

- Further limits on use of no-knock warrants
- Incentive programs for law enforcement agencies to hire/retain officers who live where they work
- Call on an arm of the Department of Health and Human Services to recommend best practices and training for police responding to calls involving people who are mentally ill
- Promotion of programs to improve relationships between police, communities and community leaders

On June 3, Whitmer called for the police intervention requirement, as well as improved police training, including training on implicit bias and improved reporting of police use of force. She set a goal to increase the minority trooper applicant pool to 25 percent and the female trooper applicant pool to 20 percent.

She has also called for the addition of four seats to the Michigan Commission on Law Enforcement Standards, which sets professional standards in education, selection, employment, licensing and funding in law enforcement and criminal justice in Michigan, to give it a greater community voice.

On Monday, Whitmer said the commission should audit law enforcement agencies to ensure they are accurately reporting violations of law or improper use of force, and establish penalties for agencies that fail to comply.

Whitmer said in an early June interview she supports "the spirit" of "defund the police" – a slogan of the Black Lives Matter movement. Though Whitmer said in the interview defunding the police is about prioritizing resources, she later clarified her remarks to say the spirit of it is about rebuilding communities in a just and equitable manner to level the playing field, but not necessarily at the expense of police departments.

resources to where it makes most sense," the email read. "This inevitably and sadly means that we have highly talented employees today who will no longer be with us in July."

In May, Whirlpool sent an email to employees stating that company leadership was focused on making 15-20 percent cost reductions on a global scale.

As one of its first attempts to reduce costs, Whirlpool offered an enhanced early retirement plan. However, the plan was considered a temporary measure, as eligible employees had until early June to make a decision.

In March, the company announced it would require salaried employees to take two weeks of unpaid leave. Employees were asked to schedule a two-week furlough between April 13 and the end of May.

With 77,000 employees around the world – of which about 4,000 are based in Southwest Michigan – Whirlpool added more workplace policies as the coronavirus continued to spread across the United States.

Starting in January, the company initiated travel bans, remote work policies, line distancing and enhanced cleaning of its facilities.

Whirlpool joined several other companies in withdrawing its 2020 earnings guidance, citing "unprecedented uncertainty" and concerns over disruptions related to coronavirus.

The company saw its first-quarter earnings fall, compared to last year's first three months of the fiscal year.

The appliance maker produced $152 million, or $2.41 per share, in net earnings for its first quarter. Earnings were down compared to the $471 million, or $7.31 per share, recorded for the first quarter of 2019. The company's revenue for the quarter also fell by 9 percent, to $4.33 billion from $4.76 billion last year.
